

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RIVER

© Frank Jones

Once you were the queen of the world
Once you were a little girl
Wrapped up in a blanket warm
Sheltered from the bitter storm

But they changed the rules to sink or swim
Was your welcome wearing thin?
Sit down shut up and welcome to the world
Doesn't everybody love a little girl?

Well, the river rolls and it never stops
Making mud and dust of rocks
And I know how it drags you down
But, o my little darling, don't drown

The other side of the river
It's just a stone's throw away
The other side of the river
It's just a heartbeat away

Let's go somewhere for a drive
Let's remember we're alive
Let's make believe for just a little while
Let me see your sad eyes smile

The other side of the river
It's just a stone's throw away
The other side of the river
It's just a heartbeat away

*Well, you can walk, you can drive
You can swim, you can dive
You can take one god almighty run up
And fly to the other side
Somewhere there's a river with our name on it
Somewhere there's a highway goin our way
Somewhere over there there's a place without care
Somewhere there, I know it's there
I know it's there, I know it's there*

The other side of the river
It's just a stone's throw away
The other side of the river
It's just a heartbeat away
